THE PRIZE ESSAY.

By Lillian White of the Virginia High School.

Following is a copy of the essay, written by Miss Lillian White of the Virginia High School Class of '90, that won the American essay now displayed on the Virginia Fourth Ward School building staff, offered by the Youth's Companion for the best essay on the "influence of the American flag when displayed over our public schools."

Through the ages, civilized nations have had some form of flag or tokens to symbolize national history and tradition, purpose and aspiration. The "Ark of the Covenant" to the Hebrews, the "Cross" to the Crusaders, the "Eagle" of Napoleon to the French—all served a purpose in inspiring to deeds of valor and patriotism that is too well known to need recital here.

In periods of general ignorance and warfare, the masses, if not in slavery, were naturally patriotic. In ages when warfare was the great highway to distinction, the youth of a nation, heedless little in the way of symbol to stimulate patriotism. The deeds of heroes in song and story were everywhere rehearsed to the people. Young and old were made to feel the force of the question—

"And how can man die better,
Than facing fearful odds,
For the ashes of his fathers,
And the temples of his gods?"

Yet, even in those times, flags and symbols were found invaluable aids to patriotism.

We live in an age distinct from all others—an age in which universal liberty and universal education are accepted axioms of government; an age in which there is a strong and growing disposition to substitute arbitration for war. There is, therefore, special need for cultivating "patriotism," as war the common incentive to it, is being tabooed. We Americans, certainly, are in no special danger from war; and yet we should ever be prepared for war—in defense of liberty and country. But there is a broader patriotism than that which pertains merely to armed defense of liberty and country. Good government, good education and good society, in other words the fair name and fame of our country, these are as properly the objects of patriotism as fighting in the armies of the country, or abiding or supporting those who fight.

The public schools, as the Hon. James Russell Lowell tells us, "are the martello towers that guard our coasts." They are the workshops in which human minds, hearts and hands are being trained for the purpose of making intelligent, industrious and patriotic citizens. They are the primary temples of wisdom, humanity and liberty.

The American flag, more than any other that floats o'er land or water, typifies knowledge, virtue and patriotism—the prime characteristics of the fathers of the Republic.

"Flag of the free heart's hope and home!
By angel hands to valor given;
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven."

It therefore has its most appropriate place when floating over our free public schools. Constantly before the pupils it keeps the bravery of their fathers, their country's history—its victories, its progress and its character. In its white we read virtue and honor; in its red, valor and patriotism; in its stripes, the immortal thirteen States that wrested the Goddess of Liberty from the claws of the British lion; in its stars the grand galaxy of States that now constitute our Union—the solar system of liberty. In defense of liberty, union and freedom it has waved over the statesman, the warrior, the orator and the scholar for more than a hundred years. To them all it has been not only a thing of beauty but an inspiration to noble action—an object lesson on liberty, justice and progress. Let the boys and girls of to-day see that liberty poles are placed upon every school building in the land, and from each pole let the star spangled banner float.

"A slave cannot breathe the free air of England." Thank God, he cannot now breathe the free air of the United States. And when for a generation the American flag shall have floated over our free public schools, may it be said: No slave can breathe on land or sea in sight of that grandest and most powerful emblem of liberty.

DECORATION DAY.

How It Was Observed in Reno.

Decoration Day was magnificently observed in Reno. The weather was cool, but there was just a little too much wind at times. The "Star Spangled Banner," floated at half-mast from public and private buildings, and the procession was one of the longest and best ever seen here. Marshal Duost and Aids managed everything in a very satisfactory manner. The music, the singing, the Grand Army exercises, the remarks of the President and Orator, and in fact all of the literary portion of the exercises were of a high order. The distribution of flowers at both cemeteries was very generous, and never before were the graves so beautifully bedecked. The address of Hon. Geo. W. Baker, President of the Day, is herewith given in full:

Friends, Fellow Citizens, and Members of the Grand Army of the Republic: We are assembled to-day at the tomb of our departed loved ones and National heroes to give voice and expression to those sentiments of affection which their mortal remains exercise over the human heart.

What ceremonies could better illustrate the fond recollections which their memory inspires than to gather in the solemn presence of the dead and mingle with their sacred ashes the first and choicest blossoms of Spring? It is not in glittering bronze or polished marble that the wealth of affection is most potently displayed; but, rather, by those tender ministrations of loving hands, which suffer neither the blasts of Winter nor a torrid sun to obliterate from the bosom of Earth those grassy mounds, which are Nature's covering for the night of eternal rest.

None at my grave any gorgeous display—
Neither column nor slab need this lonely watch keep;
But garland me over with blossoms of May,
Those jewels from heaven will soothe my long sleep.

Upon this solemn occasion is wafted back from the tablets of memory a realization of that withering sorrow, when Death, the usurper of all human joys, ruthlessly snatched from its mother's breast her prattling babe; "his blooming maiden from love's first embrace; the bride, with wedding garments for a shroud; the groom, while yet the honeymoon had scarce begun. The sainted mother, around whose gentle life were centered the affections of a household, is torn to this sad citadel while the flush and bloom of womanhood was still upon her cheek, and ere life's mission seemed yet half performed.

The loving father, upon whose manly bosom a devoted wife was sheltered from a cruel world, and helpless children clinging around his footsteps, as the vine of the sturdy oak—he, too, is here, out off before his time by that fall destroyer of mortality. The flower of youth, the joy and sunshine of a happy home, are cut down by these mounds of earth, moistened, not by the dew of heaven, but by bitter tears wrung from that great fountain of sorrow—the human heart.

These, my friends, are the sad and tender memories which moisten the eyes and dim the sunlight of this bright May morning, and open afresh the wounds which time cannot efface; and yet, to die is but the breaking of a new dawn, where eternal sunshine guides the footsteps to immortality, where shade and shadow, suffering and sorrow enter not her portals and have no abiding place therein. This is the anchor of hope which lightens the burdens of the soul and soothes the aching heart in those sad hours of sorrow and tribulation, while darkness seems to envelop the face of the earth. And to-day, while we perform these sad offices for the dead, we catch the echo from the further shore that "they are not dead, but sleeping," and will one day welcome our coming to that glorious edifice, "that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

We join in this solemn service that noble band of veterans, the Grand Army of the Republic, in offering that tribute of respect and gratitude to their fallen comrades, which their valor and patriotism so pre-eminently deserves.

Although a quarter of a century has been added to the scroll of time since they offered up their lives, a willing sacrifice, upon the altar of their country, yet are their deeds of chivalry and devotion to the cause of liberty as fresh in the minds of every loyal American to-day as when the curtain fell in the last act in the drama of treason that memorable morning at Appomattox.

What a grand spectacle, my countrymen, do these ceremonies afford to the enlightened nations of the earth! Behold over sixty millions of people gathered around the sepulchre of the Nation's defenders, strewing their last resting place with Nature's choicest gifts.

Is not this unerring proof of the lofty civilization of our people, and their unswerving devotion and loyalty to that country and its institutions, which the valor of her sons so gallantly preserved?

This is not the proper time to rehearse the glory of her achievements, or to refer length to that fierce and desperate struggle which maintained our autonomy and the union of these States. Its minutest details are indelibly stamped upon the memory of every loyal citizen of the Republic. But candor dictates the declaration that for earnest and self-sacrificing devotion to principle for uncompromising and conspicuous heroism, the Grand Army of the Republic stands unparalleled in the annals of the world's history.

To you and your fallen companions the Nation owes a debt of gratitude, which neither place nor pension can ever repay. It is to the distinguished services of that noble army that we are indebted for the preservation and perpetuity of our present form of Government, and for the establishment upon this continent, in practice as well as theory, of that grand declaration of principles: "That all men, either white or black, are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

By your dauntless bravery and never faltering determination the clanking chains and fetters of hereditary bondage were stripped from the loins of four millions of the human race, and dispelled the illusion so boldly asserted by one of their masters; that he would live to call the roll of his slaves around the base of the Bonker Hill Monument.

It is not then a source of unalloyed pleasure, my fellow-citizens, to realize that to-day in free America, with the bands of Union unsevered, our people under one flag, the glorious Star Spangled Banner, meet in unison with the Grand Army of the Republic and cover the graves of their fallen comrades with those precious gifts from God to man—Nature's beautiful flowers.

Then cover them over with beautiful flowers;
Their marches are ended, life's labors are o'er;
The heritage won by their valor is ours;
May they reap their reward on Eternity's shore.

The following is the oration delivered by Col. R. H. Lindsay at Carson:

Friends, Fellow Citizens, and Members of the Grand Army of the Republic: To-day was performed a sweet service by visiting the "City of the Dead."—Around us lay the mortal remains of friend and relative; of the hero who fought in the battles of his country, and of the babe whose possibilities in this life were cut short by the unsparring hand of death. Our mission was, not to mourn the loss of those who have gone before, but to aid in preserving green the memory of him who was willing to die that we who live should enjoy a home and country where universal freedom dwelt.

The pages of history do not record the time when flowers were first used as an offering of sweet remembrance to the dead. From time immemorial the custom has been indulged in by the polished citizen of our sister republic, France, and by the savage tribes of South America. We but borrow the beautiful ceremony and adapt it to a purpose noble in every attribute of patriotism and citizenship. Over a quarter of a century ago this broad land—this goodly heritage of ours—was devastated by a fratricidal strife. The very foundations of our liberties were threatened. For five weary, anxious years, civil war raged, as such a war only can, until there was not a home in the land but marked its empty seat. Rebellion against the best Government ever framed by the hand of man for a time seemed in the ascendant. For months, for years, the fortunes of war wavered, until at last the god of battles cast the die in favor of the Union, of liberty, of right, of country and of home.

The old, old story of the sacrifices made, of life and treasure, the un-numbered and unknown dead, and the inestimable benefits accruing to the living, is an ever new tale to us. We came to-day with laurel and with cypress; with the sweet offerings of the dale and the hillside; with flowers rare and choice, and bedecked the graves of those who in the prime of their manhood obeyed the call of honor and of country, and went forth to do battle that we might revel in the blessings of a free land, with peace and plenty. A great peon of gratitude is wafted to-day from sixty million hearts, across the dark river, until it reaches the peaceful abode of those who recognize its deep resonance, and rest in the sweet assurance of duty done.

Foremost in the great realizations of the Civil War is a united country; united not only as integral parts of the same Government, but united in thought, in sentiment, in interests and ambitions. The people who a quarter of a century ago were arrayed in fierce battle against each other, one to cement, the other to disrupt the union of these States, to-day vie one with the other in acts of loyalty to the Union and expressions of patriotism and love of country. To-day the chivalry of the South is blended with the hardihood and industry of the North, and at least an older and wiser people is the result. To-day the Carolinas the native of Maine weaves a garland of palmetto leaves to place upon the grave of him who wore the grey, while he who first saw the light under a Southern sky, joins with us in strewing daisies on the last resting place of him who wore the blue.

"So with an equal splendor
The morning sun's rays fall;
With a touch impartially tender,
On the blossoms blooming for all,
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day,
Bordered with gold the blue,
Mellowed with gold the gray."

History does not show a parallel case; one where a people are to-day writhing in the agonies of civil strife, with all its train of discord, hate, revenge, victories, defeats and bitter disappointments, and by the force of the power inherent in the people themselves are to-morrow blessed beyond all the nations of the earth in the enjoyment of brotherly love, peace, plenty, and to spare.

To-day, while we honor our dead, is it nothing that we question if the living have worthily guarded and kept all for which our laureled heroes gave their lives? Have we performed our public duties in the spirit which animated them? Have we been faithful and vigilant custodians of the trust which they left in our hands? Are we preparing to transmit to our children unimpaired and unimpaired the rich legacy of liberty and patriotism which we received from the heroes of Shiloh and Gettysburg? Or do we need even while we enlorge our dead to chide our own carelessness and sound a note of warning to ourselves?

Members of the Grand Army, to you and your fallen comrades we owe all there is of greatness in our Republic to-day, and if you, to save the nation from the blight and curse of slavery, were willing to suffer, and to die if needs be, to accomplish that grand end, though we meet the condemnation of the powerful should we hesitate to ring the tocsin of warning when we see other and as great dangers now threatening the perpetuity of our institutions? What more befitting place to sound the alarm than over the graves of Grant, of Sheridan, of Thomas, of Hancock, of Logan, and thousands of others who in life performed the parts allotted to them with fearlessness, honor and fidelity?

Before the war slavery was the ruler of American politics; and the reign of the money bags had not begun. Twenty-five years before the war you could count all the great millionaires upon your finger tips, and the man who was possessed of a hundred thousand dollars was accounted rich. Twenty-five years before the war the great railroad lines were not built, the great cities not constructed, the telegraph, and electric light, and even petroleum unknown, and the web of complex industries with which the land is now laced was then unspan. In three days money had not lost its modesty and it deferred to intellect and high character. Astor's post book-keeper (Eitz Green Halleck) was received in houses to which Astor himself was not invited, and New York capitalists waited upon penniless Agassiz and insolvent Webster. Corporations begged of Legislatures neither lands nor bonds, but were content with the privilege of life. Men did not seek trusts in order to violate them. Embellishment by stock expansion was unknown. The legislator who sold his vote made arrangements to depart from the country, and bank defalcation and bank burglary kept step of fellow convicts. War was an educator; but the tree of knowledge with its crimson leaves yielded evil fruit as well as good.

The obliteration of slavery, the return to peaceful occupations of hundreds of thousands of artisans, farmers and laborers, a phenomenal growth of inventive genius, together with a vastly increased immigration, in a few years made the marts of industry in the nation teem with wealth. The two oceans were tied together by means of iron bands. The people of the uttermost part of the nation were brought together in commercial relations, and the great resources of the country were by the industry, intelligence, and indomitable pluck of the American people turned to such account that colossal fortunes counted by the millions are to-day a menace to our liberties. In our land to-day the owner of fifty millions wields more power than the President of the United States, and the owner of ten millions can control the Legislature and choose the officers of a State. Nor is such power exercised only in feeble and frontier States; Nevada is not the only commonwealth disgraced by the soubriquet of rotten borough. To do the bidding of the powerful because of wealth, older, more sober, more cultured, more seeming virtuous sisters permit the haggard harlots of the caucus and the lobby to ply their nasty vocation unchecked, and unwhipped by justice.

A fortune of five million dollars represents the blood and sweat of thousands of artisans, mechanics and laborers; the tears of women and children, and no single life can legitimately accumulate it without wrong to his fellow man. If the resources of the country are so prolific as to make the accumulations of such fortunes as fifty and one hundred millions a possibility, then indeed it is time that May-day demonstrations be made, and that the laborer keep some little share of these immense profits by increased pay and shorter hours of labor.

There are perhaps those within the reach of my voice who will call this "Socialism." Well, that odorous word is made sponsor for most protests against the existing order of things. But I say to you, on the contrary, that this is Americanism, pure and simple. I am sounding a solemn warning against the day when the horrors of socialism in its worst sense may devastate our homes. Nihilism will follow the tyranny of plutocracy just as surely as it has followed the despotism of autocracy; and my friends it follows both so surely as the pendulum swings in equal arcs. The laws of the Almighty are not variable, neither do they know the shadow of turning. To-day the laborer asks the capitalist for eight hours, and the opportunity to cast his ballot without dictation; deny him this and to-morrow he may demand the capitalist's all—even his heart's blood.

The power of capital in this land is immeasurable and practically has unbounded license. It demands of every man in America who lives out of reach of a gas factory, or an electric plant, to pay treble prices for the poor privilege of light. The occult current that bears the tidings, joyous or sad, to your home, is made subservient to the power of capital, and you are compelled to pay a treble tribute to Croesus; deny yourself a gift from heaven to man which will yet be as free as the air we breathe.

Aggregated wealth systematically and company, see no new faces. Silently they even ostentatiously avoid the payment of its share of taxation, putting the burdens of government on the poor.

The growth of decay of cities, and the fortune of bankruptcy of individuals are promoted by corporate managers. Laws against trusts are their playthings.

Monopolies in transportation, monopolies in light, monopolies in fuel, monopolies in land, monopolies in water, monopolies in mines, monopolies in sugar, beef and flour, these are the corporate vampires who sit upon the Republic which our soldiers fought to preserve and suck its life-blood whilst they fan it to continued slumber with their ebony wings, laden with the odors of bribe and menace. These are the powerful despots who enter the temple and tear the bandage from the eyes of American justice, who attempt to rule this land with a rod of iron, and whose arrogance has become so open that they no longer take pains to conceal it. Do I strike wide of the mark when I assert that this shamefaced arrogance is used in many instances to hurl from place honest and capable judges, who, in endeavoring to uphold the majesty and dignity of the law, dare to render opinions inimical to the grasping interests of these rapacious wealth gatherers? The threadbare coat and raveled sleeve of honest poverty walks your streets to-day, the victim of corporate wealth, whose honest demands he denied.

A practical illustration of the grossly sinful practices of the wealthy creditor classes in the United States to-day, to enhance their own already plethoric purses, and at the same time make the poor poorer by making money scarce and labor cheap, is found in "the great crime of 1873," by which the money of the people was degraded to a commodity, and the greater crime of permitting the stupendous fraud against the Nation to remain on its Statutes. Pledges, promises and platforms of all political parties alike, seem but so many air-built castles to which the toiling man goes are pointed as houses of refuge, but which are in reality the veriest deadfalls of treachery.

Legislation is degenerating into a question of how much. Is it not a fact that the poor soldier, who has his wounds to speak for his services to his country, is debared from the privilege of a paltry pension, because some piece of paper or red tape has been swept away in the carnage of battle, or worn out by the lapse of time; yet the railroad land grabber is filled to surfeit with the Nation's wealth, without consideration except, perhaps, it be "wine and wine and worse" by which he debauches the legislator?

Here let us draw the curtain, the truth will not bear the telling. "Oh, for a new Savior to walk in this grand temple, that our legion freed from slavery, repaired with their toil and cemented with their life-blood, and scourge the scoundrels who defile it, saying as of old, 'My house is a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.'"

"Vice is a monster of such hideous mien, That to be hated, needs but to be seen; But seen too oft, familiar with its face, We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

The hugging has arrived with us. This same cankerous disease—the selfish brutal reign of wealth—ate the vitals of ancient Rome, and it fell, the gibe and taunt of those who rule the earth by "Divine right."

Will our grand fabric, with its 70,000,000 population, 22,000 miles of sea coast, and a network of iron roads, facing and binding its many climates and diverse interests into one grand and sublime structure, with a unity of purpose—national greatness—crumble to decay, from the effects of this same sore on the body politic? No, a thousand times no! Not so long as the American public school is permitted to work out our salvation on the plan of an absolute and total division between the practical education which makes bread-winners and that which fits us for a life hereafter. The experience of the ages and blood of thousands gone before, teach us that sectarianism and the public school, religion and politics will not mix. The mothers of the Nation, with by the force of their love of home and of the children they bear, raise up a new generation of men who will be taught that patriotism and love of country is better than gold; that personal worth and intellect are not to be weighed in the balance with filthy lucre. Already a band of noble women have inaugurated for the benefit of the children of the country an object lesson in patriotism, and from every schoolhouse in the land floats with childhood's piping cheer, that led Washington to victory at Yorktown, and the immortal Grant to success at Appomattox.

The evils we are complaining of will be eradicated by the influence of American womanhood, and intelligence, the offspring of our public schools. From behind these shining towers of defense a new generation of men will make a successful fight against the enemies of the Republic, and correct the result of our follies.

I have faith in the American people, faith in the stability of Republican form of Government when founded upon popular intelligence, faith in the soundness of self-government everywhere, when ignorance shall have yielded its cruel empire to the peaceful sovereignty of reason. The dawn of that better day is already breaking, and members of the Grand Army of the Republic alive to-day will see its brightening morn; some, perhaps, its noonday sun. But my friends, and as the question gains, let us face propounds it; what new graves will be bedecked with garlands one year hence? Other armies are kept up and augmented by constant accessions to their ranks, but the crippled and way-worn veterans receive no new

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

She Speaks To Every American Housewife.

I regard the Royal Baking Powder as the best manufactured and the most successful for use.

I have any experience in the use of such compounds.

Since the introduction of it into my kitchen, three years ago, I have used no other in making biscuits, cake, etc., and have entirely discarded for such purposes the home-made combination of one-third soda, two-thirds cream of tartar.

Every box has been in perfect condition when it came into my hands, and the contents have given complete satisfaction.

It is one sort of simple justice and also a pleasure to recommend its unequalled quality to American housewives.

move onward, recognizing the inevitable in their march. When they fall out of the ranks it is to take a rest from which no blast of bugle or roll of drum shall ever call them again. Thus they are passing away—passing away. Let fraternity, charity and loyalty grow stronger with the hastening year and the blessings for which the old best fought grow more precious as their faces disappear forever.

BIGELOW FOR U. S. JUDGE.

The subjoined endorsement of Judge Bigelow appears as a communication in the Austin Reveille, of the 23d:

The position to the President of the United States, asking for the appointment of Judge R. R. Bigelow, one of the District Judges of this State, to the United States District Judgeship of Nevada, is a striking compliment to him, in that it is the sentiment alike of both Republicans and Democrats.

Three years and a half ago, when Judge Bigelow was elected by the whole State to the District Judgeship, which he now holds, he was comparatively little known throughout this State, yet he has been a resident of Nevada for many years. Since that election he has become very generally known, and the united sentiment is to-day, "Bigelow would be an honor to any position in the United States, especially one of a judicial character."

The strongest sentiment uttered against him here at Austin is: "We want to keep him on the bench of the State District Court or elect him Supreme Judge this Fall." The Democrats are equally anxious with the Republicans to do something handsome for him, and if Lander county had the appointing of Judge Sabia's successor, Judge Bigelow would be the man.

We truly hope that Senators Jones and Stewart and Congressman Bartine will see to it that President Harrison is made to know the special qualifications of Judge Bigelow for the U. S. District Judgeship, and then we have great hopes that the President will do the proper thing and give Judge Bigelow the appointment.

We are entitled to a man who is fearless, honest, capable and industrious; such a man is Judge Bigelow. We therefore ask President Harrison to lend a helping hand, as the power is with him, and in making this appointment, help the people of Nevada to disfigure the sign that has so long hung over us—"The Rotten Borough."

It is not the people's fault that this sign was painted; it was the bosses who did it. Now we ask: give the people their choice, and that choice is R. R. Bigelow.

Will Put on a Fast Train.

A new fast train from Chicago to California will be put on the Atchison Railroad Sunday next. It will shorten the fastest time heretofore made between these points by twenty-four hours. The time consumed between Chicago and San Francisco will be ninety-six hours.

A report from Alamosa that a wonderfully rich strike has been made in the Goldconda mine, Southern Colorado, which is owned by Senator Tom Bowen. A solid streak of gold an inch thick, runs through the mine. Ten days ago a pocket was opened from which $200,000 has been taken. The strike has created the greatest excitement in the southern part of the State.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has authorized a favorable report on McGree's bill authorizing the United States to cooperate in a preliminary survey for a transcontinental railway to connect the three Americas and appropriating $65,000 for the United States' share of the expenses.

High authority says that Secretary Noble is considering the matter of resigning and accepting the attorneyship of one of the Pacific railroads. It is also rumored that Commissioner of Pensions Green B. Rags, will soon resign.

A Family Poisoned.

Special to the Journal.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Night before last the family of Frank C. Kuhn, a wealthy real estate man, was taken violently ill after supper with symptoms of arsenical poisoning. The hired man died in a short time. To-day Mr. Kuhn died and his wife is in a critical condition. It was first thought poison was in the pie bought at the bakery, but a number of other pies made at the same place and time and sold to families in the neighborhood, produced no sickness. The police are investigating.

The ladies can not afford to miss this chance. The goods are known to be first-class, and first come will be first served. Read the column announcement elsewhere and be governed accordingly.

NEWS OF THE MORNING.

FATAL COLLISION ON THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD—BASEBALL.

A Family Poisoned—Senator Carlisle Gives His Views on Government Warehouses.

Opposed to Government Warehouses. Special to the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Senator Carlisle has written a letter to E. F. Howard, at Tuskegee, Alabama, in response to a request for views upon the bill providing for a system of Government warehouses for farm products, upon which products Treasury notes only can be issued. The Senator expresses a strong opposition to the proposed plan.

He says: "Farmers have been taxed so long for the benefit of other classes and seen so much legislation for the aggrandizement of corporations and syndicates that their patience is exhausted. But no evil can be corrected by increasing its magnitude and extending the scope of its operations. The only effectual remedy is to reverse the policy which produced it."

In conclusion Senator Carlisle says, even if it could be conclusively shown that this or any similar scheme would be peculiarly beneficial to any particular class of people he would still be unalterably opposed to it because, in his opinion, it would be another vile and dangerous departure from the principles upon which our political institutions are founded.

Crushed to Death.

Special to the JOURNAL.

OROVILLE, Cal., May 31.—Leonard Anderson, 19 years old, and son of A. E. Anderson, Chairman of the Butte county Board of Supervisors, was killed in the Gold Bank quartz mine at Forbestown this morning. DENVER, May 31.—A special from North Platte, Neb., says: The westbound Union Pacific limited express drawn by two engines collided with a switch engine this morning. The engine was demolished. Attempted Suicide.

KISSES.

(A la-Bonne and Juliet.)
"A prominent physician calls the kiss 'an elegant disseminator of disease.' He says, 'never spread by it, so are lung diseases.' Out upon the married and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old fox says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming. Take One Little Sugar-Coated Pellet a Day. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Effortious Attacks, and all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels. 25 cents a box, by Dr. Cassell."

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." For the purpose of electing delegates to the said State Convention the Primary Election to be carried out in compliance with the laws of the State and the instructions of this Committee.

The following test will be required of each and every voter at the said Primary Elections:

"I am a citizen of this State and will support the platform of the Republican party."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this committee reaffirms the State and National Republican platform of 1888, including the declaration that "the Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money" and that "it condemns all efforts to demonetize silver."

Resolved, That the persistent neglect of Secretary Windom to increase the coinage of silver to the maximum of four million dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to induce Congressional legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonetization, is a shameless and deliberate attempt to deprive the people of the State of their property, and that the committee of the National Republican platform, as set forth upon the rights and interests of the miners, farmers and workers of the land, and an act of party partiality that should call for a re-evaluation from the council of an Administration which is pledged to help and not to hinder the demonetization of silver.

Resolved, That the Republican party of this State is in favor of free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver, that it holds to this principle as a basis of party faith and a test of party allegiance, that it will permit of no abandonment or modification of this doctrine, that let whoever will prove recreant to the principle of bimetallicism it will remain steadfast thereto, and that it invites all voters in Nevada who favor the repeal of the infamous intermeddled law of 1873 by which silver was demonetized, and who desire the establishment of free and unlimited coinage as the law of the United States of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican State Convention.
